

"Scott is amazing! He is teaching my eight year old daughter to play and he is patient and attentive. We are so lucky!"

-Paula B. from Holyoke, Massachusetts

Scott Sanchez

Guitar Instructor

Scott Sanchez has been teaching guitar for many years to students of all ages and skill levels. He was a graduate teaching assistant at Yale University School of Music, where he received a music scholarship in classical guitar. He earned his Master of Music degree from Yale University, and his Bachelor of Music degree from the Lamont School of Music at the University of Denver. Since that time he has taught music at Trinity College, Wesleyan University and the University of Massachusetts in Amherst. Currently, he is head of guitar studies at Franklin Pierce University in New Hampshire.

Scott received his Suzuki Guitar training from the Hartt School of Music at the University of Hartford, and has many years experience teaching guitar to children. In his private home studio, he teaches children and adult students of all skill levels.

As a concert guitarist, Scott has performed internationally. His three cd recordings on the Intraspect label cover a vast range of repertoire from the Baroque era to modern day.

TEACHING PHILOSOPHY

"It is my belief that all students, regardless of their age or level of experience, are able to benefit from the rewarding study of music. I enjoy teaching students of all ages and levels from beginning to advanced. It has been my experience that students who get a solid technical foundation in note reading, music theory and aural skills are able to reach their goals in any musical style. It is for this reason that lessons are primarily focused on classical guitar skills, as this skill is rewarding in and of itself, and will also help students with all styles.

I also have a background in Pop, Rock, and Jazz improvisation, and I have found that a mix of musical genres can be integrated into lessons, creating an enriching and enjoyable experience. Ensemble music making is a rewarding experience for students, and much of the focus of lessons involves playing duets with students. I also like to create opportunities for students to play music in ensembles with each other.

Music is a universal language to be shared with others, and the ultimate goal of lessons ideally leads to performance. I encourage students to play for family, friends and in musical recitals. Whatever one's musical aspirations, I look forward to the opportunity of helping students reach their goals."

TESTIMONIALS

"Scott is an amazing guitar teacher! He has been teaching my son guitar for several years now. He is simply brilliant. You can tell he enjoys what he does. He has been very professional, dedicated, and thorough in his work. He has given my son extra support throughout my son's lessons, thus making him a better guitar player. I highly recommend Scott for any guitar instruction!"

-Deb P. from Easthampton, Massachusetts

"Scott is an excellent teacher and wonderful guitarist. His instructions and suggestions are very targeted and effective. I enjoy our lessons as they are a mix of directed, hands on training as well as some discussion, idea sharing, and playing. Scott is a great listener and has a talent when it comes to finding the right exercise, etude or piece to continuously improve my playing."

-David S. from Greenfield, Massachusetts

"I have studied classical guitar with Scott for two years and he was a tactful, focused, experienced teacher who supported my growth with gentle guidance and care. He supplemented my lessons with duets, informational sheets for teaching points and various studies to highlight right and left hand techniques. He knows how to zero in and help you in a positive way. He is personable and easy to learn with."

-Timothy B. from Northampton, Massachusetts
